Personal Statement

Dave is in private practice providing counseling and financial therapy for individual, couples, marriage, family, groups, workshops and businesses. He is a pioneer among financial therapists using tele-therapy to counsel clients nationally and internationally via the Internet. He specializes in experiential therapy and intuitive experiential therapy, approaches which allow him to help clients heal at a deep emotional level. Dave has developed a number of exercises using real money to help people see financial decision making patterns, where they originate and ways to emotionally modify them.

Dave partners with financial planners offering financial coaching and therapy in the financial planning session to help work through emotional obstacles.

Dave has created and conducts a number of various workshops, including the Psychology of Money, Financial Recovery Program and Love, Coupleship and Money. He also has served for several years as a group facilitator at Onsite Workshops in Nashville, Tennessee.
